BUILDING OUR CHILDREN’S RESILIENCE GRANTS PROGRAM
GUIDELINES: ROUND 2 (2017-18)

Background
In 2016 the Maldon & District Community Bank® (MDCB) asked our community to nominate a top priority for our bank to support with a special stream of funding over three years. We did this through extensive online and in person conversations, asking people what they felt needed addressing most. Ultimately, our community chose Building Our Children’s Resilience as that priority.

In October 2016 we held a Roundtable to create mini whole-of-community discussion about children’s resilience in our region with educators, service provides, researchers, experts, government and parents. The outcome was a clear local picture which in turn enabled us to finalise the criteria for this new funding program.

The Maldon & District Community Bank® launched the Building Our Children’s Resilience (BOCR) Grant Program in late 2016 (round 1).

The current round of the program is open between 20 September and 12 November 2017, and has funding of $20,000 in total available. We invite applications from across our communities to apply for this funding for projects or programs that will build children’s resilience in this region.

Program Objectives
This program is about building children’s resilience by focusing on the wellbeing of those closest to them – parents, carers and educators.

It aims to knit connections across sectors and areas in our region from Maldon to Newstead, Dunolly, Castlemaine and surrounding areas. We want this program, ultimately, to nurture the children in our region so they are able to thrive and reach their full potential socially, emotionally and academically.

Building Resilience In Children
Resilience can be defined as “the ability to draw upon the strengths within yourself and those around you to flexibly respond to life and creating positive relationships with others. The more resilient our children are the more likely they are to have a safe, healthy and fulfilling life” (C. Dawson, Cobaw Community Health, MDCB Roundtable Oct 2016).

Resilience and wellbeing are attributes which are dependent on the interplay of both the internal resources of the individual child and the external factors of their environment, namely their relationships with significant adults and their connection with social groups, their schools and communities (Building resilience in children and young people, 2012)¹. This is why evidence-based research shows that effective interventions address children’s development needs and strengthen their environments. A sense of connection or belonging to school and to family is the single most important protective factor for resilience in young people¹.

Our own research and discussions with many educators, service provides, researchers, experts, advisors, parents and carers has indicated that school-based curricula for social and emotional learning (SEL) programs is in abundant supply with high take-up in our local schools (with more SEL programs forth coming from the Victorian Department of Education and Training as part of the Building Resilience in Children and Young People programs in 2016/2017). However, there is a gap in programs and funding to support educators and parents in building their own resilience and social and emotional wellbeing.

Recognising that the work of fostering resilience in our children requires both specific skills and high degrees of emotional energy, the MDCB grants programs seeks to make a lasting difference by funding programs and initiatives aimed at skilling up and nurturing the nurturers.

Applications will be sought annually in September for projects the following year. There will be three rounds of funding, one each in 2016, 2017 & 2018 for projects in the year following.

Applying – Round 2
We welcome applications that will build children’s resilience in our region. Please carefully read our guidelines and speak to our Executive Officer, Karly Smith, before applying. Applications for 2017-18 close on midnight Sunday 12 November 2017. Successful applicants will be announced in mid-December 2017.

Building Our Children’s Resilience Grant Program Guidelines (Round 2)

As a Community Bank, we are dedicated to providing quality banking and financial services in our region and to re-investing our profits back into the region where they are made. It means those who bank with us at the Maldon & District Community Bank® help build the communities in which they live.

In 2016 we asked our communities to name the top issues in our region our Community Bank could address with our profits. Building our children’s resilience topped that list. This grants program is our commitment to address that priority.

Our conversations with our communities, educators, experts, government, support providers and parents have revealed a shared concern about the significant need to build children’s resilience and a common agreement about:

- the critical role parent and carers play in addressing this issue, the need for education and their active engagement in their children’s resilience and wellbeing
- the vital role educators play, the responsibility and load this requires, in the school environment and the importance of educators personal and professional skill development in this area
- the need for greater engagement of parents with teachers and the wider community in addressing this issue collectively
- the need to link networks already working on building children’s resilience
- the need to build awareness of programs and support that exist to help parents, teachers and carers to build resilience in children,
- the value of encouraging intergenerational connection to children and ensuring communities model resilience for children,
- the need to resource schools and other primary places/centres for children so their staff are skilled and able to grow resilience
- the importance of evaluating programs that claim to build children’s resilience so people can know what works and what doesn’t.

Objectives

Mindful that creating real outcomes in terms of children’s resilience is the product of addressing systemic environmental and individual factors, this program is about building children’s resilience by focusing on the wellbeing of those closest to them – parents, carers and educators.

It aims to knit connections across sectors and areas in our region from Maldon to Newstead, Dunolly, Castlemaine and surrounding areas. We want this program, ultimately, to nurture the children in our region so they are able to thrive and reach their full potential socially, emotionally and academically.

Criteria

How will applications be assessed
Assessment of eligible applications will be based on the following:
- Evidence of need and relevance. Letters of support significantly strengthen your application. We strongly recommend that you include letters of support (from partner organisations, local government, client or user groups for example), in-kind support and quotes with your application.
- Clear identification of the anticipated project outcomes (what will be different, improved, increased, decreased, etc.) and how the achievement of those will be known
- A clear and achievable project plan (what will happen, when, by whom) & budget
- Capacity of the organisation to manage the grant
- Broad benefit to the community
- Value for money
- Involvement of partners & collaboration

Grants may be sought for one year only.

Closing date for applications
Sunday 12 November 2017 (by midnight)
Applications can be emailed, posted or hand delivered.
Mailed applications to be post marked on or before the closing date.
