Portfolio performance

For the month of July 2021, the Strategic Income Fund achieved a -0.02% return for the Class A units. The return was impacted by capital volatility in Asset Backed Securities (ABS) over the month. The Fund has provided a return of 1.45% over the past year.

Equities in developed markets such as the US continued to see strength. Bond markets in these regions outperformed as yields retreated from previous spikes (prices increase as yields decline). Emerging markets were weaker with announcements from the Chinese government around regulation for several sectors unnerving investors inciting volatility over the month. Adding to the uncertainty was the rising cases of COVID-19 due to the highly contagious Delta variant. Governments have struggled to contain Delta which is threatening the success of the global economic recovery. Positively, the stability in vaccine rollouts and continued government support for economies has mitigated the risk of COVID-19 significantly impacting markets.

Domestically, the virus has remained prevalent in New South Wales with the state lockdown extended. Victoria and Queensland have also had challenges in containing the virus with short lockdowns enforced over the month. Domestic markets were largely immune to the news on COVID-19, and the extension of government support measures calmed investors.

Asset allocation

Australian credit markets performed positively with spread compression observed across most asset classes. Liquidity in markets remains strong and overall demand is outstripping supply. Whilst the global economic outlook continues to recover from the pandemic, any uncertainties remain. Volatility is expected in the periods ahead as the pandemic response progresses.

The Fund's focus remains on high quality investments with minimal volatility. At the end of July, the Fund had 33% in cash instruments, 28% in Floating Rate Notes (FRN) and 69% in non-cash assets rated AA- or higher.
