Portfolio performance

For the month of May 2021, the Strategic Income Fund achieved a 0.10% return for the Class A units. Projecting the monthly return for the next 12 months would provide an annualised return of 1.19% after fees. Returns were supported by another positive month in credit markets, although income was a larger component of the total return than previous periods.

Global economic data was again positive, but due to the strong start of the year markets were less reactive to the news. Investors have turned their focus to inflationary pressures that have been emerging over the last couple of months. The gradual reopening of economies coupled with large fiscal support from governments has led to higher inflation prints. The debate to whether this is transitory or more permanent has been prominent in the US, with markets concerned that the Federal Reserve will raise rates sooner than expected. Contrary to the growing consensus in markets, the Federal Reserve maintains a view that inflation will be transitory rather than persistent.

In Australia, the highlight event was the May Federal Budget. The Budget was stimulatory and generally well received by markets. There was a significant improvement in underlying expectations for 20/21 and 21/22, with smaller deficits and lower overall debt.

Asset allocation

The Reserve Bank of Australia (RBA) left rates on hold in the May policy meeting. The RBA noted that whilst a strong recovery is evident, inflation pressures are expected to be subdued in most parts of the Australian economy, a view like the US Federal Reserve. More broadly, the Australian economic outlook continues to improve, and markets have been buoyed by the optimism.

Whilst the recovery is strong there are still uncertainties from the pandemic. The Fund's focus remains on high quality investments with minimal volatility. The Fund has 34% in cash instruments, 28% in Floating Rate Notes (FRN) and 38% in highly rated, securitised assets. Approximately 73% of non-cash assets are rated AA- or higher.
