Portfolio performance

The Sandhurst Strategic Income Fund (Class A units) delivered an annualised return of 5.88% (after fees) through the quarter ending 30 September and has generated an average annual return of 2.79% (after fees) since inception. The Fund continues to outperform its benchmark and the running yield differential to the benchmark of 1.42% at the end of the quarter will support the Fund's ability to generate income to unitholders.

The domestic credit market exhibited low volatility and outperformed through the quarter whereas global risk assets were generally weaker. Strong services inflation in the US coupled with tight labour markets indicated persistent inflationary pressures which led to an increase in bond yields globally and saw equities underperform.

There were no notable changes to the RBA's approach to tame inflation through the period despite a stronger than expected monthly CPI print for August. Michelle Bullock replaced Phillip Lowe as the new Governor for the September meeting but the script from the prior meetings was retained. Whilst there has been limited change from the RBA's rhetoric in recent times, the quarterly inflation reading in addition to updated forecasts from the RBA in November could see shifts in upcoming meetings.

Domestic primary markets were active in August as issuers looked to tap in to debt markets once earnings were reported. Prices were resilient despite the strong supply and there was little premium offered on new transactions as attractive yields led to persistent demand from investors. Securitisation issuance in the third quarter largely comprised of residential mortgage backed issuance from banks. The ongoing demand for securitised issuance saw transactions upsized and credit spreads compressed across the sector. Offshore credit also performed relative to other asset classes although unlike the local market the strong supply following the northern summer lull period did begin to negatively impact prices late in the quarter.

The Portfolio Manager remains vigilant of the escalating attacks that broke out between Israel and Palestine in early October and will remain proactive as the situation unfolds. There are currently no unrated assets in the Fund and more than 70% of exposures are rated AA- or higher. At the end of September, 21% of the portfolio is allocated to cash and bank deposits, 43% in bank/corporate bonds and 36% to asset backed securities.
