Portfolio performance

For the month of February 2022, the Strategic Income Fund achieved a -0.05% return for the Class B units. The return was impacted by capital volatility across credit markets over the month. The Class B units has generated a return over the past year of 0.61% after fees and since inception delivered an average return of 3.12% p.a.

The volatility index (VIX) spiked in February as geopolitical risks increased on Russia's invasion of Ukraine. The volatility prompted a risk-off move in markets seeing the US S&P 500 briefly enter correction territory. Exacerbating the moves was the increased likelihood of monetary tightening from central banks due to elevated inflation. Bond yields rose as a result and had flow on effects to the credit markets. Credit spreads (the difference between the yield on credit assets and risk-free assets) widened translating into capital losses across credit market securities.

Investors have grown increasingly concerned on the potential impacts of the war and subsequent sanctions to supply chains, energy, and agricultural commodities. There was limited shelter from the volatility, with equity and bond markets feeling the pressure broadly.

The Fund Manager remains cautious amidst the heightened level of volatility. A focus on high quality investment remains and at the end of February, approximately 23.1% of the portfolio is allocated to cash instruments, 45.9% in bank/corporate Floating Rate Notes and 31.0% to asset-backed securities. There are currently no unrated assets in the Fund and approximately 57.4% of non-cash assets are rated AA- or higher.
