

Community Bank[®] seeking community-minded board members

March 27 2017:

Lockmore Financial Services (LFS) is seeking expressions of interest for new board members.

LFS, trading as the Elmore/Lockington/Rochester Community Bank[®], is guided by a community board that focuses on supporting the success of our communities, working to benefit local groups, projects and events and our shareholders.

Brad Drust, Chair of Lockmore Financial Services, announced expressions of interest are now being called for. “As a board we focus on making and placing company profits back into the local community and we are seeking some new members to help us with this rewarding work” said Brad this week.

“We would like to talk to Elmore, Lockington, Rochester and district residents who are, most importantly, passionate about our community. Beyond that our new board members could come from all parts of our community – farmers, small business owners, retirees, residents with young families,” said Brad.

Diversity on any board is important. From gender to age, from white collar to blue collar, from experienced to inexperienced. Everyone can offer a different perspective, can relay concerns of a community, can offer direction and help make a community stronger. Legal, finance, marketing and communications, information technology, governance, human resources and management are all skills that would be welcomed on the Lockmore Financial Services board.

In the past 13 years, we’ve returned $1.2 million back to our local communities. “When making decisions that see your own community benefit, it makes this position extremely satisfying,” said Brad.
